

Ever thought of becoming a business consultant?

What does a business consultant do?

A business consultant works with clients on various aspects of planning, strategy and problem solving. A business consultant can also provide information and guidance, to help executives or upper management master business skills in their unique industry.

How much do business consultants earn in the UK?

A junior consultant on average earns a base salary of £30,000 per annum. An average director in the consultancy industry can earn up to £190,000, including benefits and bonuses.

